April 24th declared Human Values Day in Carleton Place

April 12, 2017 by Lake 88 News Staff

Carleton Place Mayor Louis Antonakos proclaimed April 24 Human Values Day in Carleton Place at last night's council meeting.

Every so often it's important to take a step back to refocus on the things that people really care about in life - even if it's just for a day.

Antonakos said Human Values Day is about promoting the importance of values like truth, peace, love and non-violence.

The day encourages people to focus on creating universal peace and harmony which is something that starts at community level, Antonakos said.

Human Values Day is celebrated on the same day in many Canadian cities.
